MURCHISON

NATIONAL PARK

穆尔其森河
国家公园

Also referred as "Kabalega National Park," which owned the world's strongest waterfall, gushing out 300 cubic meters of water every second, the powerful pressure may cause the surrounding to tremble. It has 3820 square kilometres long, is the largest and oldest National Park in Uganda, also the home for various wildlife, 144 mammals, 556 birds, 51 reptiles, and 51 amphibians.

The Private Sunset Boat is known as "The Albert Delta Launch Cruise", come with snacks and drinks. The cruise slowly sails down the stream where the river split up and created numerous floating islands of papyrus zones. It also refers as the "Sun downers", due to the cruising period was normally in the evening, during the sunset.

KIBALE

NATIONAL PARK

基巴莱国家公园

Kibale National Park is a national park in western Uganda, protecting moist evergreen rainforest. It is 766 square kilometres (296 sq mi) in size and ranges between 1,100 metres (3,600 ft) and 1,600 metres (5,200 ft) in elevation. Despite encompassing primarily moist evergreen forest, it contains a diverse array of landscapes. Kibale is one of the last remaining expanses to contain both lowland and montane forests. In eastern Africa, it sustains the last significant expanse of pre-montane forest.

Queen Elizabeth National Park is the only place in Uganda can found the tree climbing lions. When we talk about climbing trees, this may seems to be bizarre and an unusual behaviour for lions. This phenomenon is rare in the way where there were only two documented populations of tree climbing lions in the world, and both located in Africa, Western Uganda and Southern Tanzania. The experts believed that the lions are climbing trees for preventing insect bites or sweltering heat. Additionally, also an excellent point to observe the surrounding or movement of the others before taking an action.
